CAUTION

Danielle Renee Ware is wanted for her alleged involvement in the kidnapping, torture, and attempted murder of two individuals in Lancaster, California. On May 30, 2015, Ware and her then husband, who has been taken into custody, allegedly kidnapped two individuals, drove them to a remote location, and told them they would be killed. While at the remote location, Ware and her husband allegedly stomped on the victims' faces, punched them in the face, choked them with a chain, beat one of the victims with a metal can, burned the victim with a lighter, and forced one victim to assault the other through biting. During the assault, one of the victims lost consciousness several times. Eventually, the vehicle used by Ware and her husband to transport the victims got stuck in sand, forcing Ware and her husband to abandon it. On June 5, 2015, a felony state warrant was issued for Ware's arrest by the Superior Court of the State of California, County of Los Angeles, after she was charged with attempted murder and kidnapping. A federal arrest warrant was issued for Ware in the United States District Court, Central District of California, Los Angeles, California, on October 26, 2015, after she was charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.
